

AJPH Podcast features Dr. David Sundwall on The Public Health Dialogue

Dr. David Sundwall had a great opportunity to be interviewed for the American Journal of Public Health (AJPH) podcast entitled, "The Public Health Dialogue." Alfredo Marabia, MD, PhD, Editor-in-Chief of AJPH interviewed Dr. Sundwall along with Georges Benjamin (APHA), Dick Gottfried (D-NY), Pete Kirkham(R), Dick Zimmer(R-NJ) regarding current challenges and the need for bipartisan approaches to seek policy change.

"My objective here is not to describe how opinions may diverge," Marabia said, "But to show how opinions in public health may sometimes converge because the public does not always have the opportunity to listen to opinions from both sides simultaneously."

Dr. Sundwall represents the department and university in a great light as he talks about the change in public health policy throughout different political administrations.

To listen to Dr. Sundwall and here some great discussion on public health policy, visit:
<https://soundcloud.com/alfredomorabia/ajph-podcast-42018-the-public-health-dialogueenglish>

Kristen Steiner
Public Relations Associate
801.581.5321