

First Annual Education, Research, and Community Engagement Poster Summit to be held April 15

The Education Mission Advancement Committee of the Department of Family and Preventive Medicine is pleased to announce the implementation of the First Annual Expanding the Possibilities of Health Poster Summit which will showcase education, research, and community engagement work done throughout the department.

Students, Post-Docs, and Health Studies Fund (HSF) Awardees from the Divisions of Family Medicine, Public Health, Physician Assistant Studies, and Occupational and Environmental Health of the Department of Family and Preventive Medicine have been invited to contribute to the department's vision of Expanding the Possibilities of Health by showcasing their scholarly, engaged, and creative research at the first Education, Research, and Community Engagement Summit.

"We are very excited about the overall student enthusiasm and interest in participating in this inaugural departmental event," said Dr. Rod Handy, Professor and Chair of the Department of Family and Preventive Medicine Education Mission Committee. "As a committee, we were originally anticipating around 40 abstract submissions – instead we received almost 60. This activity will help to bring together our four divisions in a worthwhile collaborative effort and provide all of our students the opportunity to meet students, staff, and faculty from the other departmental divisions."

We invite all to attend this first annual poster session to see the amazing work that our students and faculty have put into their research, as well as learn of the many ways the department is helping to expand the possibilities of health.

The event will be held on April 15, 2019 at the University of Utah Cleone Peterson Eccles Alumni House from 10:30AM – 1:30PM. Click HERE for more information.
